A Town Where Traditional Garden Culture Blossoms with New Life

Horikiri is a historic town that dates back to the late Edo period. The Horikiri Iris Garden, beloved by Tokugawa shoguns and ukiyo-e master Utagawa Hiroshige, continues to enchant visitors with seasonal flowers throughout the year. In recent years, the area has also become a place of discovery, where new cultures are emerging—such as cosplay events held in the local shopping streets.

A bustling shopping street in front of the station

Ohanajaya Furusato Festival

A Charming Area with a Cozy Downtown Feel and Hidden Gems to Discover

The name "Ohanajaya" is said to have originated when Tokugawa Yoshimune, the 8th shogun, fell ill with stomach pain while falcon hunting. A young woman named Ohana from a local teahouse cared for him with great kindness, and in gratitude, the shogunate named the area "Ohanajaya" after her. Today, the neighborhood still overflows with warmth and heartfelt hospitality—a place where the spirit of kindness lives on.
